

The Middle School Student's Guide to Ruling the World!*

Through Work Management and Organizational Skills

By Susan Mulcaire

The life of a middle school student is very busy.

You're bound to have a homework emergency such as forgetting specifics about an assignment, losing a worksheet, or just being generally confused about something you need to get done!

Who can you turn to for help?

STUDY
BUD TO
THE RESCUE!

A Study Bud is a classmate you can rely on to help you be a more organized middle school student.

Having a reliable Study Bud is like having a solid back up plan for managing your middle school workload.

Call or text your Study Bud for help when you...

- forget to write down an assignment
- forget a book at school
- lose a worksheet or a handout
- are out sick and need someone to pick up handouts, books or worksheet
- need someone to study with
- need a partner on a project
- are generally confused about something your teacher wants you to do...

Remember:

It's a 2-way street.
If you have a Study Bud
you are a Study Bud.
Be responsible!

Review the Study Bud Rules on p. 52

It's great to study with other students, but don't waste precious time!

Check out pages 54 & 55 for how to study productively with others.
